

Katie Johnman

Katie Johnman has over 12 years experience in the field of Business Psychology, specifically in the areas of assessment, selection and development. She began her career in the National Health Service (UK) where she first carried out action based research around interprofessional team based learning and stress at work, before moving into leadership assessment, team development and training. It was in talent management that she was really able to make an impact, designing and delivering leadership assessment programs for high potentials and hiring the best in class medical and nursing team leaders.

Since October 2011, Katie has practiced as a freelance psychologist in the Netherlands, almost exclusively as a Senior Consultant for YSC. In January 2016, Katie joined Volta Executive Consultants. Her specialist area is senior leadership assessment and development and she has worked for a variety of international clients around the world. In addition to consultancy, Katie is a visiting lecturer at the University of North Umbria (UK) teaching on the MSc program, as well as delivering Psychometric training for students.

Katie studied Occupational Psychology at the University of North Umbria (UK), and is a certified practitioner in a range of psychometric assessments, as well as in assessment and development center design and delivery.
